

ROUND TABLE

New challenges of regulation: smart cities and platforms

6 September, 2018

h. 16.30 -19.00

Socialfare, Via Maria Vittoria 38, Torino

Smart city strategies and platform economy are currently at the basis of important transformations which are reshaping the way services are today organized and provided, the reality in which we live and our lifestyle.

Considered to be some of the most powerful tools to deal with contemporary challenges (climate change, energy efficiency, social inclusion, economic growth and welfare), smart city policies and platforms have the objective to offer best conditions to develop new welfare and business models, to bring together demand and supply overcoming transactional costs, awakening sleeping assets, to guarantee better governance and to increase citizens' quality of life, their digital health, security and personal safety.

Despite the many positive potentialities of these policies and of the instruments on which platforms are based, some of them are creating new challenges. Policy makers and regulators are struggling with the many and very complex ongoing economical, technical, social, urban and anthropological transformations and evolutions.

The creation of new and more adequate regulatory and political discourses/measures able to deal with all the emerging transformation is still at the very beginning.

The round table will be an occasion to explore, decipher and better understand some of the relevant aspects that are characterizing smart cities and platform economy, the major regulatory challenges that are emerging and some of the responses that regulatory and policy makers have adopted so far.

Speakers:

Meltem BAGIS AKKAYA, Turkish Competition Authority

Lorenzo BAIRATI, University of Gastronomic Sciences of Pollenzo

Jean-Michel GLACHANT, Florence School of Regulation

Barbara MELIS, Planet Idea srl

Laura ORESTANO, Socialfare

Andrea SBANDATI, CISPEL Toscana

Stefano VALERIO, Turin School of Local Regulation

Chair: Monica POSTIGLIONE, Turin School of Local Regulation

Participation is free. For further information and registrations please contact info@turinschool.eu

The event is organized in the framework of the 21st International Summer School on Regulation of Local Public Services

The institutional activities are supported by

In cooperation with

